BARONESS TELLS OF OLD RUSSIA

Glendale Business Women's Club Has Opening Social Event

GOOD PROGRAM GIVEN

Dr. Brown Announces Turkey Dinner for Thursday Night

A jolly social evening in which the mysteries of the future were revealed by honest to goodness fortune tellers following a most interesting talk on Russia by the Baroness Otilly De Ropp, was the good fortune of sixty members of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club Tuesday night.

The program opened with three delightful Russian compositions, "Prelude in C. Sharp," and "Polichinelle," by Rachmaninoff, and the "Danse Russe Trepak," by Tschaikowski, played by the professional pianiste, Miss Alma Geiger, who is a member of the club.

This was by way of introduction to the address by the baroness in which she contrasted former conditions in Russia with those which now obtain and which are causing such misery to her countrymen, under the yoke of the Bolsheviki. She explained the origin of the serf system which made the peasants a fixture on the estates, a species of slavery, although each peasant had his allotted land in the villages in which they dwelt, and in return for the three days of the week in which he worked for the estate he was given three days in which to work for himself. It was established, she said, because previous to that the peasants continually wandered and there was no stability to labor.

Conditions spelled comfort in comparison with the present when famine stalks up and down the land. Under the Bolshevik rule the produce of the peasants to 90 per cent has been confiscated and instead of being used to feed their countrymen has been sold by the government.

In concluding her talk she said that she and her husband celebrate as a special thanksgiving, October 26, the day on which they landed in America.

The balance of the evening was devoted to a program, arranged by Mrs. Fred Walton and Mrs. Peggie Warner, who is a palmist of considerable local repute. Refreshments of tea and wafers were served and the fortunes told with tea leaves. A lesson in the fundamentals of the "Fox Trot" was given by Mrs. Nanno Woods and her daughter, Dorothy, which greatly entertained the on-lookers as well as the class.

Dr. Laura Brown, president, announced the turkey dinner at which the club will entertain members of the federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs next Thursday evening at the Glen Inn and urged all present to come and bring guests as the program will be of exceptional interest.

FURNITURE IS SOUGHT FOR CITY HALL

Eagle Rock City Building Committee to Consider Goods and Prices

The city building committee will go "window-shopping" tomorrow at 10 o'clock in the morning, and secure prices on furniture and equipment for the new city hall.

The building committtee is composed of Elmer Bergsvik, chairman, Jesse H. Taylor, J. C. Curtis and City Clerw B. B. Martsolf. Much time during the latter part of the evening Monday, was spent in discussion of the needs for the city hall, following the transaction of the regular business of the meeting of the board of trustees. Reports will be made to the board next Monday night.

Newcomer Buys Old Webster Place

T. A. Stahlberg, a newcomer to Glendale, has just recently purchased the old Webster home at 215 West Park avenue where he and his family are living.

Mr. Stahlberg is constructing at present, near Park avenue on Brand boulevard, a one-story building, to be leased as three different stores. This structure will be completed and ready for occupancy in the near future and is just another one of South Glendale's business houses, where business is growing rapidly.

GLENDALE ACTORS ARE ORGANIZED IN THE CITY

Glendale will no longer have to take off its hat to Pasadena, Hollywood, Eagle Rock and other sister cities in the matter of community players for an earnest group of Glendale residents have at last formed a dramatic society known as Glendale Community Players.

It is believed that this little nucleous of Glendale men and women, amateur and semi-professionals will so develop that it will stimulate other groups of Glendale people to form other dramatic societies with their own selected directors, all playing with the same community spirit.

Miss Dorothy Morton, secretary, 114 West Milford street, telephone Glendale 629-M, will be glad to communicate with interested parties.

BOY SCOUTS TO HOLD CONTESTS OF ACHIEVEMENT

Verdugo Hills Council Decides to Adopt Plan as Proposed

At the meeting Tuesday night of the executive board of the Verdugo Hills district council of the Boy Scouts of America, held in the offices of Roy L. Kent, 130 South Brand boulevard, the proposed troop achievement contest was officially adopted and will start as soon as possible. The adoption of the contest for the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills district by the executive board last evening followed the approval and endorsement given by the troop leaders' round table at its meeting held in Tujunga Monday evening.

It is claimed by those responsible for proposing the troop achievement contest that it will be a great force in the intensive development and promotion of scouting in the home, school and the church, and that before the contest draws to a close there will be between 300 and 400 Boy Scouts in the Verdugo Hills district. The contest will run for a period of one year divided into four periods with prizes to the troops winning highest honors at the end of each period. In addition to these prizes there will be four grand prizes which will be awarded to the troops having the highest number of points at the end of the year.

Frank C. Ayars of 315 North Orange street, who has been the scoutmaster of troop No. 3, Glendale, for the past year, was elected to the council, succeeding C. H. Crawford of 1319 North Central avenue, who resigned. It is the plan of the executive board to recommend to the national council the appointment of Mr. Ayars as deputy scout commissioner for Glendale.

The executive board authorized the scout executive to draw up a contract with the national council of the Boy Scouts of America for furnishing the local scout office with a series of weekly pictorial activities which it is planned to have distributed weekly by scouts to various stands which will be established in banks, chamber of commerce offices, stores, etc.

The report of the scout executive for the month of September showed that 15 new boys had been taken into the organization during that time. A Boy Scout fire department was organized at Tujunga. Four delegates were sent to the older scouts conference at Sacramento and they in turn visited every troop in the district, telling of their experiences. Burbank troops resume meeting after summer disbandment. Delegation of scouts from the Verdugo Hills district went to the Fairbanks studios and to Santa Monica to assist in rally of the Crescent Bay district preparatory to their financial campaign. Troop No. 3, Glendale, completely reorganized with 30 Scouts, a new scoutmaster and the first active troop committee they have ever had. The troop is under the sponsorship of the Glendale chamber of commerce. Four merit badges were qualified for in public health, cycling, personal health and swimming. Four visits were made by the scout executive to Glendale troops, two to Tujunga, two to Burbank, one to La Crescenta and one to Eagle Rock. Publicity to the amount of 22 articles totaling 217 column inches were received through the local newspapers. Four volunteers were procured to serve as scoutmasters and troop committeemen.

VIVISECTION LECTURE HAS BIG AUDIENCE

Several Hundred Hear British Surgeon Advocate State Measure

PLAN SUPPORT HERE

Describes Practice as Cruel, Cowardly, Immoral and Useless

Several hundred people enjoyed the lecture given last night at the high school auditorium on "Vivisection and Vaccination — Twin Crimes of Modern Medical Science." The address was delivered by Dr. Walter R. Hadwen, M. D. L. R. .C. P., double gold medalist in surgery of London, England.

The platform was tatefully decorated with flowers. Col. Thomas Thornton acted as chairman and introduced the speaker of the evening, who was received with warm applause. Dr. Hadwen is probably the greatest authority on anti-vivisection in the world.

In speaking, Dr. Hadwen described vivisection as cruel, cowardly, immoral, barbarous and useless. He said that he had debated the question with dozens of M. D.'s in this state, and found not one to answer his case or justify their own.

It was stated, "during 2,000 years of practice of vivisection nothing has been gained from it that has done away with disease and all great advances that have been made in medicine have been achieved through scientific experience with patients and post-mortems. It has been learned that all kinds of operations were performed as long ago as 600 years B. C., and all without experiments on animals. Animals by the million are annually tortured and the whole basis of germ theory has gone. No surgeon with a reputation to lose would dare to undertake an operation on a basis of anti-septism. Surgery today has achieved its real results without experiments on animals."

Dr. Hadwen declared "the medical profession is too much occupied in trying to cure disease instead of trying to prevent it."

A number of questions were sent to the platform by medical students present, some of whom indulged in a species of heckling of the distinguished speaker.

It was decided to form a local organization of anti-vivisectionists. The interesting meeting closed with several delightful solos by Mrs. Guy Bates Post and a piano number by her accompanist, Miss Hoff.

$125,000 BOND ISSUE UP TO THE PEOPLE

Three Propositions on Water Situation at Eagle Rock

On December 12, according to the ordinance, No. 203, which was passed at the first reading at the meeting of the board of trustees, the people of Eagle Rock will vote on a $125,000 bond issue, calling for three propositions on the ballot.

The first proposition calls for a vote of $60,000 for adequate water supply, including the drilling of two wells, the acquisition of a 300,000 tank to be placed upon Sycamore hill, the laying of a 12-inch main down Colorado boulevard, replacing the present 6-inch main, and the laying in of additional 6-inch mains from the reservoir, and along the alley between Central and Valley drive.

The second proposition calls for a vote of $40,000 for fire protection. This would provide the regulation 4-inch fire hydrants, and would call for a replacement of the present 2-inch mains with 4-inch mains, and would call for the installation of 6-inch mains where at present there are 4-inch mains.

The third proposition calls for a vote of $25,000 for lights. This would provide for a light at every intersection in Eagle Rock, City Clerk B. B. Martsolf stated this morning. It would not provide for any ornamental lighting of a district but would simply relieve the situation of unlighted streets.

There will be two precincts for the election, the present two precincts, 1 and 2, will be included in precinct 1, with the polling place located in the basement of the public library. Precinct 2, including the present precincts 3, 4 and 5, will be given a polling place in the lobby of the new city hall.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL TO BE OPENED IN SEPT. '23

Trustees Devise Plan for the Construction of Plant for $600,000

The meeting of high school trustees Tuesday night was given wholly to a consideration of how to provide the largest accommodations for the necessary units of the new plant to be built on the campus at Broadway and Verdugo Road, with the funds available. The new plant will open in September, 1923.

Four different propositions were considered. In the one finally adopted the auditorium was cut to a capacity of 2000, all provisions for the manual arts were eliminated leaving the work in the forge, wood-working, auto and machine shop departments to be carried on at the present plant. All allowance for gymnasiums except such temporary bungalow structures as would conform to the requirements of the law was cut out. This, it was figured, would leave sufficient to provide classrooms to accommodate a student body somewhat in excess of 2000.

Students in the manual arts department will be compelled to go to the other plant for the balance of the course and it may work a hardship upon them.

The plans for the auditorium will have to be redrafted and fresh computations made. This, Architect Austin says, will require several weeks. The board will not be able to advertise for bids before the middle of November or first of December.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BOND ISSUE IS RAISED

Board of Education to Call Mass Meeting to Consider Election

A number of very important matters were considered by members of the board of education at their meeting Tuesday night. One was the calling of a mass meeting to consider the calling of a bond election to provide funds for school expansion. Superintendent White and Business Manager Black were instructed to investigate and report on the possibility of establishing junior high schools.

The figures contained in the taxpayers' guide just issued by the county supervisors, were referred to the board by Superintendent White. It shows the Grand View district, which has been a part of Glendale for three years, is still included in the Burbank school district. The report shows that Burbank has been credited with $680,445, or nearly three-fourths of a million which should come to the Glendale district. Mr. White was instructed to see what could be done about it.

D. H. Smith of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, accompanied by K. T. Crawford, appeared before the board to demonstrate a thrift savings' stamp slot machine adapted for use in the public schools. As the Wilson Avenue and Glendale Avenue Intermediates had asked for stamp machines, the board ordered two machines installed in those schools.

Bids were received for a classroom bungalow to be built on the Pacific Avenue grounds, the board having decided it would be a waste of money to move one from the Columbus Avenue campus at an expense of $400 when later it would be needed where it now is. There were three bids, the lowest from Elmer Elliott being $802.50. He was awarded the contract with the understanding it would be ready for use inside of ten days.

of the Acacia and Glendale Intermediate in the matter of bicycle racks and report at the next meeting.

Business Manager Black was instructed to investigate the needs

Mr. White reported the ruling of Health Officer Kaemmerling that absence from school for five days on account of illness calls for a certificate of health before the child can return to school.

The board indorsed American Education Week from December 3 to 9 and authorized the putting on of a special program by the schools that week.

Carpenters Approve of Single Tax Plan

Amendment No. 29 on the ballot was openly discussed Monday night at the regular meeting of Carpenters' local, No. 563, held at the K. of P. hall, corner of Park and Brand.

Messrs. McCauley and Robertson of Philadelphia explained the amendment in detail, which concerns the single tax, and it was the concensus of opinion that it would be the only logical relief for the present high tax rate.

POLICE START AN UNANNOUNCED TAG DAY

Little Costly Card Spreads Financial Loss on Brand

Without benefit of publicity, the police started an auto tag day, today.

Motorists, the tagger 'll get you if you don't watch out.

Said tagger was on the streets of Glendale Tuesday and he placed a little yellow reminder on the wheel of a number of cars belonging to prominent men in Glendale, as well as some who are not so very prominent. All of them were tagged for leaving their machines on the business streets for longer than three hours.

The route up to Judge Lowe's court this morning was kept warm by the three-hour law violators running in to pay their fines.

Here's how the officials of the city hall look at the matter:

"The council makes the laws of this city," said Chief of Police Fraser, "and it is up to us to carry out the wishes of that body and to uphold the laws."

"When violators of any of the laws of the city come before me, I endeavor to mete out justice," said Judge Lowe.

Those who were picked up yesterday included Dr. Fay Stone, A. L. Baird, F. Crampton, H. L. Butterfield, J. A. Endicott, John Joraleman, J. R. Gray, Dr. J. E. Eckles, B. E. Sisco, C. L. Peckham, Louis Delonco, D. H. Smith and Dr. Hugh H. Mitchell.

C. OF C. ADOPTS PETITION FORM OF NOMINATION

Forum Decides to Abandon Old Form of Securing Candidates

A change from the method of nominating by primary candidates for the directorship of the chamber of commerce and substituting a system by which the candidates shall be nominated by petition was affected at the forum meeting of the Glendale chamber of commerce Tuesday.

The sections pertaining to nomination and election as changed read as follows:

"(a)—Nominations of directors: "Any member in good standing may be nominated for the board of directors by petition of ten members in good standing, provided such petition is filed with the secretary at least fifteen days prior to the date of election, and that no member may sign more petitions than there are directors to be elected.

"(b) Election of board of directors:

"The election of the board of directors shall be conducted as follows: Certified ballots accompanied by numbered return envelopes shall be mailed to all members at least ten days prior to the election. Members may cast their votes in person, or return them by mail or messenger to the polling place, provided that they reach the polling place in the numbered return envelope prior to the hour for closing the election."

In the discussion of this change most of the directors voiced their opinions in the matter, some being for the change and others against it. The final vote was 15 for and 10 against.

C. W. Ingledue stated that as it was the general opinion that each section of the city should be represented on the board of directors, the only fair way would be to divide the city into sections and elect one director from each section, and then to permit the board as elected to appoint two or three members at large, as has been done in the past.

It was decided to change the name of the chamber from The Glendale, California, chamber of commerce to the chamber of commerce of Glendale, California.

Peter L. Ferry moved that a committee be appointed to investigate the tax situation and to see why taxes in Glendale this year are so much higher than they were last year. This was seconded and carried and a committee consisting of Peter L. Ferry, chairman, and C. W. Ingledue and Roy L. Kent was appointed to look into this matter.

The election for seven new directors to the chamber will be held on November 28. Petitions nominating candidates for the board must be in the hands of the secretary of the chamber not later than fifteen days prior to that date.

The following new members were voted into the chamber:

Hipolita Screen and Sash Co., 21st and Alameda streets; Fred K. Czerniski, La Crescenta; Harry D. Clark, 512 W. Doran street; Charles Von der Ahe, 110 E. Jefferson street, Los Angeles; Southern Pacific Co., 338 El Bonito avenue; Crown Sash Door and Mill Co., 840 W. Slauson avenue, Los Angeles; Quality Shop, 110 S. Brand boulevard; Federal Water Heater company, Los Angeles; Jewel City Plumbing company, 526 E. Broadway; Glendale Sanitary Market, 524 E. Broadway.

OPTIMISM IS KEYNOTE OF THE VALLEY

Chambers of Commerce of San Fernando Gather at Citizens Bldg. and Boost

HADDOCK IS ORATOR

Spirit of the District Is Revealed in the Address of the Evening

"All roads lead to Glendale," said Lon Haddock, of the Haddock & Nibley company, subdividers of Glendale Heights, at the banquet of the Associated San Fernando Chambers of Commerce, at the Glendale chamber of commerce headquarters Tuesday night. He continued:

"There are a lot of things in Glendale to boost and we should boost them. There is no place in the world that lends itself to close co-operation as does this valley. As Captain Hobson said when he was here, I believe we have just begun the construction of one of the greatest empires the world has ever seen—right here in California.

"The world has been a long time finding out the wonders of Southern California and now that it has found us, it is making tracks for this section. In years gone by many people thought climate was the only thing we have here, while we have God's most marvelous resources. It is the duty of the chambers of commerce to show these wonders to the world.

"In a great measure you secretaries are the men who have made this valley. I can remember when the San Fernando valley was nothing but a huge barley field, and I have not lived here so long at that. The government tells us that one acre here is worth four acres elsewhere, so far as productiveness is concerned. Things grow here all the time, and there is a wide diversity of crops. It is an ideal section for farming as well as for living."

Supervisor Henry W. Wright, also, was present at this meeting and gave a very interesting talk, his remarks being confined chiefly to the work of the county board of supervisors.

"At the county farm no building work has been done for five years. Buildings are badly needed, and for this work we are asking two millions of dollars," he said.

"We are also asking two millions of dollars for additions to the county jail. The present jail is a disgrace to Los Angeles county. It was built to house 250 people and right now it is accommodating 450. It is a shame the way these people are crowded in there."

Dr. T. F. Ratledge of Los Angeles was present, and spoke to some lenugth on amendment No. 16, which is known as the chiropractic amendment.

"In my constructive civic work which has covered a space of several years," said Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the civics committee of the Glendale chamber, "I have learned that co-operation is the highest asset to any community. I believe this organization is a vital thing in the up-building of the San Fernando valley."

A pleasing feature of the evening was the vocal solo of Wilbur Herwig, tenor, who recently arrived from Philadelphia. Mr. Herwig sang "You and I," and responded with an encore entitled "The Lassie Who Loves Me Still."

Following the program a short business session of the organization was held. The festivities of the evening were started by a 6:30 banquet.

PERMIT FOR POOL PARLOR BEFORE BOARD

Referred to Police and Sanitation Committee for Report

Requesting a permit to erect a filling station in compliance with the new city ordinance recently passed which allows filling stations to be constructed of steel and glass, as well as of hollow tile, brick, or reinforced concrete, A. M. Wight of 135 West Washington, sent a communication to the city of Eagle Rock, which was read at the meeting of the board of trustees last evening.

The proposition was for a filing station to be erected at the corner of Los Robles and Colorado. The matter was deferred for one week.

Another request was made for the establishment of a pool and billiard hall at 128 South Castle, through J. Bonner of 322 East Fourth street in Los Angeles. The request was referred to the police and sanitary committee, to be decided upon at the next meeting.

'GREAT SCOTT! IS THIS ONE FAMILY?' ASKS CONDUCTOR

"These're Only the A's; Going Through 'Em First," Says Scott

WARSAW, Ind., Oct. 25.—Five sets of triplets and two sets of twins have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott in ten years of married life.

The Scotts, parents, and thirteen living children, boarded a west-bound train in search for enough land to provide sustenance and employment for the whole family.

"We can't carry a Sunday school class, madam," remarked the conductor to the mother as she offered one fare.

"But they're my children," Mrs. Scott replied.

The family Bible was produced and disclosed the record. They were:

Ashbell, Archer and Austin, each 4½ years old.

Arthur and Arnold, each 3½.

Allen, Almon and Albion, each 2½.

Alfred, Albert and Adolph, each 18 months.

Abel and Abner, each 6 months.

The mother is 30 and the father 31.

They live near South Whitely. The father humorously remarked that they started the first children's names with the letter "A" intending to go through the alphabet later.

EAGLE ROCK IS ASKED TO ACT ON WATERWAY

Sycamore Tract Is to Come Before Trustees' Meeting

In answer to the reminder coming from Commons, Packard and Witcher, that the city had promised to take immediate action on an easement for a waterway thru Sycamore tract No. 5289, City Attorney Rollin I. McNitt stated that he would have the resolution of intention ready for presentation at the next meeting of the board. The waterway, according to plans previously accepted, would bring a waterway across the entire tract belonging to Chas. W. Commons, Albion S. Packard and P. S. Witcher, and extending on down to Linden way, giving a satisfactory drainage for flood waters for the whole district affected.

A delegation of citizens from the neighborhood of Delmar and Forrest avenue, requested the board of trustees to arrange for a meeting between them and the city engineer, T. A. Jordan, in order to decide upon the best plan for managing the flood waters that have no outlet from Park avenue. The city clerk was instructed to accede to their request, and make the necessary arrangements with the city engineer.

MULTIPLE LISTING IS ADOPTED BY REALTORS

The multiple system was adopted by the Glendale Realty Board at a special meeting held at the chamber of commerce rooms Tuesday night. At the meeting last night a report of the committee appointed to iron out the objectionable features of the system made its report, afterward a vote was taken the result being 26 to 4 in favor of adopting the new law. Ballots will be mailed to 19 members of the board who were not present at the meeting. The vote cast by the non-present members cannot alter the decision already taken by the board on this matter.

Parent-Teachers to Attend Conference

About 15 or 20 members of the Parent-Teacher associations of Glendale are expected to attend the First District Conference at South Pasadena High School on Thursday.

The morning session, a meeting for federation presidents, opens at 10 a.m. This will be followed by a half hour's discussion on parliamentary law, conducted by Mrs. E. B. Wyman of Glendale, parliamentarian for the district.

Other subjects that will be discussed are legislation and thrift, and a musical program will follow, as well as several good speakers.

Luncheon will be served in the school cafeteria for 50 cents a plate.

NEW CHECKER CHAMP

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—Asa Long, 18-year-old school boy of Toledo, Ohio, won the checker championship of the United States by deefating Alfred Jordan, world famous checker player in the final play off of the tournament here.

MIDGETS WIN FROM SOUTH PASADENA

Most Grilling Game of Season Won by Light-Weights

THE SCORE IS 7 TO 0

Teams Are Evenly Matched But Glendale's Fleetness Turns Scale

In the most thrilling grid game played this season Coach Butterfield's midgets defeated the South Pasadena lightweights 7 to 0 at South Pasadena yesterday.

From start to finish, the contest was a hard fight. The teams were evenly matched, man for man, yet the swiftness of the local squad turned what seemed a defeat into victory. Receiving a thirty yard pass and with a clear field ahead, a South Pasadena man started for the goal but was stopped by a beautiful tackle by White. Twice did the Tigers repeat their successful pass but each time they failed to make yardage and lost the ball close to the goal line. White, local fullback, was easily the star of the game. The hosts were powerless to stop him until he had torn off from two to ten yards. In the third quarter a hard tackle knocked the plucky White out, but he was revived in a few minutes and went back to his place, fighting harder than ever.

South Pasadena won the toss and received the kickoff at 3:40 p. m. From the fifty yard line they started a steady march up the field. A touchdown seemed a certainty, but on the visitors' ten yard line, a South Pasadena man was offside and the loss of five yards probably cost them the game. Glendale took the ball on her ten yard line and a brilliant run by W. Roberts, half back, brought the ball out of danger to the center of the field. There it remained for the rest of the quarter. The Tigers had tightened and prevented a repetition of Roberts' run.

The second quarter was full of thrills. After making a twenty-yard run, Roberts dropped the pigskin which was recovered by Lee, the fast South Pasadena fullback, who ran it back to the fifty-yard line. In two passes the Tigers advanced to the ten-yard line and there lost it by an incompleted pass over the goal line.

The third quarter resolved itself into a punting contest. The crowd received a thrill when White fumbled on Glendale's twenty-yard line but fortunately he recovered the oval and prevented a touchdown.

In the final round the local boys marched steadily up the field and La Frenchie, quarterback, barely made a touchdown, when a failure to cross the line would have given the ball to South Pasadena. Twice the local boys fought to gain the one yard that would mean victory, but were repelled by the hosts. On the last down they crossed the line. Lovell then sent a beautiful drop kick squarely between the uprights.

The lineup:

Glendale—McIver, L. E.; McAllister, R. E.; Burns, L. T.; Searle, R. T.; Morrison, L. G.; Putnam, R. G.; Jeter, C.; Roberts, L. H.; Schuler, R. H.; La Frenchie, Q.; White, F.

South Pasadena—Fugit, L. E.; Taylor, R. E.; Jones, L. T.; Fenburg, R. T.; Wood, L. G.; Ledgewood, R. G.; Havil, C.; Boyer, L. H.; Mack, R. H.; Fugit, Q.; Lee, F.

Substitutes—Lovell for La Frenchie.

AUTOS COLLIDE

An automobile driven by Fred Deal, 237 North Louise street, and a car operated by a party whose name could not be learned, collided at the corner of Brand and Broadway at 8:15 Tuesday morning. Little damage was done and no one was injured.

'MANSLAUGHTER' WINS AUDIENCE AT T. D. & L.

Manslaughter, at the T. D. & L. is wonderful.

More than 2000 Glendalians witnessed the production of this truly marvelous photoplay at the T. D. & L. theater Tuesday, the opening day of its showing here, and each patron left the theater declaring it to be one of the grandest, all-around productions ever seen in Glendale.

In this play the speed fiend is given something to think about. He sees the speed demon operate in all his glory, sees the ultimate result and also beholds the penalty that sometimes comes to the speeder. Lydia Thorne, the speed maniac, kills a man, is sentenced to the penitentiary, where she finds her soul, which was lost in a haze of dizzy wine parties, dances and speedfests, and learns to listen to the heartbeats of the poor unfortunates around her.

It shows Tommy Meighan as Dan O'Brannon, the district attorney, convict the girl he loves. Afterward he goes down before the crushing arm of drink, only to be lifted by the love of the girl he sent to jail.

It is a powerful story from start to finish. It is brim full of the speedy, money-mad, careless life of the present day. In this production DeMille has done his best work. He has given to the world a picture that will live and that will have the effect of causing motorists to think before they endanger the lives of others.

Manslaughter is one of the most lavish productions, the most tremendous in power and appeal that has been made in years. It is filled with remarkable dramatic situations.

It will continue at the T. D. & L. today and Thursday, thus giving everyone a chance to see it.

BEWARE OF THE OILY SEWING MACHINE REPAIRER

Fake solicitors and others who want to get by with the least effort have been plying their nefarious business with considerable energy in and around Glendale lately. The latest scheme to be worked is the solicitor and repair game. A man or woman gets hold of a bunch of cards of a sewing machine agency for instance, and goes around to houses and represents himself as the agent of said concern. He gets a job of repairing and often sells a machine or buys in an old machine and sells the housewife something she doesn't want.

This is happening every day, and local business firms are warning the people not to take too much stock in peddlers and solicitors. It would be a good idea when one of the suspicious kind calls to immediately phone the firm he claims to represent and verify the statement. One concern in town was called on to take care of a bad job of repair work on a sewing machine, that the party said had been done by the local concern. It was discovered that the job was the work of one of these solicitors, who was out for easy money.

EDITORIALS By the PEOPLE

Editor Glendale Press:

Dear Sir—I wish to call your attention to a notice which appeared in a recent issue of your paper, regarding a Bible class conducted in the home of Mrs. Knestrick, 1002 North Louise, by Mrs. J. Rhea Baker. The notice states that this class is under the auspices of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, whereas it is being conducted under the auspices of the Church of the Open Door.

There is no organic relation between the Church of the Open Door and the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, although the Church of the Open Door holds its services in the Bible Institute auditorium.

We would greatly appreciate your correction in this connection, as the statement as it stands might cause some confusion in the minds of your readers.

Yours very sincerely
T. C. HORTON, Superintendent,

FUTURE OF RED CROSS TOLD BY PAYNE

By JOHN BARTON PAYNE

The Red Cross has a very definite place in American life. It is a semi-governmental institution, chartered by congress, with prescribed public responsibilities. Its program is national and international in scope and the organization is so flexible that it can meet emergency needs wherever they may arise.

The basis of the Red Cross is the individual member, and the chapters into which its members are grouped. These chapters are located in counties, towns and cities throughout the United States. The peace-time program of the Red Cross calls for real work on the part of these individual members and chapters and the effective aid of its friends everywhere. The most important functions are:

1. To look after the men of the army and navy and the former service men and women; these are our special and urgent care.

2. To extend the activities of the public health nurse in rural communities throughout the United States where adequate health facilities are painfully lacking.

3. To be adequately prepared and ready for every emergency due to pestilence, famine, fire, floods or other great national calamity, and to do what we may to protect such; this means an army of volunteers devoted to Red Cross service.

4. The Junior Red Cross at home and abroad—teaching children service and unselfishness.

The primary responsibility of the Red Cross is the care of the disabled ex-service men and their families. Those good people who sometimes think that the Red Cross has little to do since the war ended should know that this activity alone cost the Red Cross last year approximately ten million dollars. This service is not indiscriminate but is rendered to the men and their families where the disability is due to actual service. To the extent of our financial and personnel resources, we will continue to discharge this responsibility.

Out of the experience of the war grew certain primary health lessons of convincing, universal value. As a result of them there came about over the country an understanding of the present inadequate distribution of public health nursing and a widespread demand for public health nurses. The Red Cross is equipped to meet this need and has made a very large contribution to his service. There are now some twelve hundred of these health missionaries carrying the Red Cross health banner throughout the rural communities in the United States. This work is not competitive but cooperative with local organizations.

The disaster activities of the Red Cross are constant preparedness for disaster and actual relief operations after disasters occur.

The Junior Red Cross is the American Red Cross in the schools. Through the cooperation of the school teachers, more than five million children are actually participating in Red Cross work. Through a system of international school correspondence, they are telling children in foreign countries about life in this country and in return are receiving informative letters from foreign children, which increase their knowledge of the world and arouse sympathy and lasting interest. The example they have set in educational relief for war suffering children of Europe has resulted in the establishment of Junior Red Cross societies in many other countries. This movement of neighborliness among children cannot help but play an important part in laying the foundations of a world united in friendship and peace.

As for the future, the Red Cross will carry on. The need for it always exists. Its ability, however, to discharge effectively its responsibilities depends entirely upon the sustained interest of its chapters and its membership. Every citizen, having the welfare of his fellow-man at heart, should belong to the Red Cross. There is no greater privilege, no higher honor, than serving mankind and the watchword of the Red Cross is, "I serve."

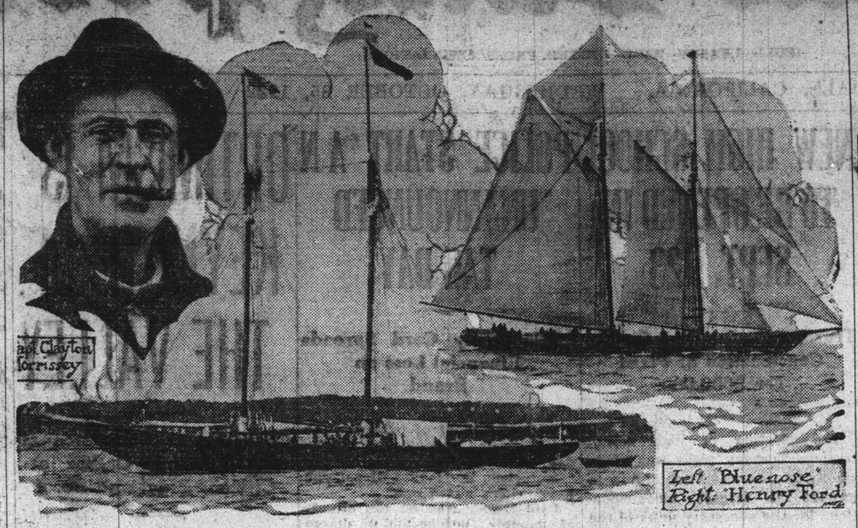
HERE ARE ENTRIES IN FISHERMAN'S RACE



Bluenose is the Canadian defender and Henry Ford, commanded by Captain Clayton Morrissey, is the American challenger in the international fisherman's race now off Gloucester, Mass.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 25.—White-capped, choppy seas, driven by a fisherman's breeze, rolled out of the southwest when the Gloucesterman Henry Ford, challenger for the championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleet, met the Canadian defender Blue Nose in the second race of the international series here today.

The Ford went across the line in the lead at 11:00:50 a. m. The Blue Nose went over at 11:01:02 in the weather position.

J. O. C. CLASS HAS FAREWELL PARTY VISIT

The J. O. C. class of the First M. E. church gave a farewell party Tuesday night in the church parlors for its teacher, Mrs. C. M. Crist, who with Dr. Crist, leaves Glendale today to take up his new work as district superintendent of the San Diego district.

The evening was spent in a jolly good time, the recent convention being the topic of conversation. It was a rousing convention in all respects and left every J. O. C. member with the hope to be and do better each day of their lives.

Mrs. Lydia Rehberg, president, thanked the chairmen of each committee and each and every individual member for unanimous help and support during the convention.

She then asked Mrs. Crist to talk to the girls.

Mrs. Crist gave a very informal talk. In part she said: "Girls, this will have to be a most informal chat with you as that's the only way I can talk. Until most people know me, they think me so formal, when in fact I don't know how to be formal." To this last all the girls agreed. It is with sad hearts they have to give her up as their teacher. But they hope and aim to live up to all the good advice she gave them in her last talk as their teacher. Each girl feels she is so much better off for having known her and to have been one of her scholars, some for the entire three years she has taught the J. O. C. class.

Through a ruse which cleverly worked out, Mrs. Crist was asked to express a few words of appreciation and love in behalf of the class to their president, Mrs. Lydia Rehberg, for her efforts during the convention and presented her a large bouquet. Mrs. Rehberg in turn presented Mrs. Crist with a gift from the class, but she was so surprised her presentation speech left her and she only said, "Mrs. Crist, we believe in reciprocity."

The gift to Mrs. Crist was a beautiful cameo pin, surmounted by two rows of 21 tiny pearls, almost a pearl for each member of the class, there being 155 members. Anyone acquainted with Mrs. Crist knows just how deeply this affected her and just how sweetly she thanked the class.

Punch and wafers were served by Mrs. Alva Starkey and committee.

When Margaret Davis, a 14-yeaf-old Chicago school girl, disappeared her parents were convinced she had either been kidnaped or murdered. MONARCH BLOCK GRAND OPENING ON SATURDAY

The grand opening of the Monarch block, corner Harvard and Brand, will be held between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock, Saturday night. It is the plan of the various stores in this block to have everything in connection with their establishments finished and ready for display, with the exception of the Greenleaf Drug company, which will open shortly.

The firms located in this building are the Monarch Auto Supply company, which is at 204 South Brand, the Greenleaf Drug company, 200 South Brand, the Fashion Center, 202 South Brand, and the Tregea's Gift shop, which is situated at 192 East Harvard. Each of these establishments is right up to the minute, being among the foremost stores in Glendale in their respective lines. In addition to the stores the offices on the second floor will be formally opened. On this floor there are 19 offices, all of which have hardwood floors, southern gum finish, and many other attractive features.

On Saturday evening music will be furnished by one of the leading orchestras of Glendale, the players being located on the mezzanine floor of the Monarch Auto supply store, and during the evening several vocal solos will be rendered by Ole Andresen, one of the leading vocalists in this city.

The Monarch building was constructed and is owned by the Monarch Building company. Its cost was $60,000, and it is modern in every sense of the word, being a valuable addition to the business life of the city.

A number of pleasing features are being arranged for those who attend this opening Saturday night. All of the stores will be "dolled up" in their best clothes. Refreshments will be served and the people of Glendale will be given the "glad hand."

Watch the Man With the Advertising Idea

—he may be the coming brains of your business

Look over the young executives who direct the retail and the manufacturing businesses of New York.

A surprisingly large percentage of them have reached their goals by advocating advertising, by directing the advertising and by making the advertising work.

If yours is a business which doesn't advertise, don't close your ears to the story of your young men. Help them to think it out—listen to their plans and their hopes. Add the counsel of years of experience to the minds of the men who are planning the future of your business.

Did you ever expect that iron could be advertised profitably? Few advertising men did. Did you ever expect to eat trade-marked grape-fruit? It is an accomplished fact at thousands of breakfasts this morning. Did you ever think the dairymen could profitably use the forces of publicity, or that a barbershop could grow to twenty-five, largely by the power of the written word and an ideal of service?

The coming executives realize that a business exists, in the last analysis, in the minds of its customers, rather than in four walls and a roof, and, perhaps, that is why they are coming executives.

FOOT TROUBLES NOT NECESSARY SAYS GOLDBERG

That many people are realizing that medical authorities are right when they assert that most foot troubles are unnecessary, is evidenced by the great number of persons who are this week calling on Mr. Goldberg of the Specialty Boot Shop, 213½ East Broadway, for relief.

This is Dr. Scholl's national demonstration week, an event in which thousands of shoe merchants all over the United States and Canada join in an effort to spread the message of foot comfort.

Mr. Goldberg who has studied the Dr. Scholl method of foot correction is very positive that there is relief for every foot sufferer. He declares that thousands have been benefitted through Dr. Scholl's foot comfort service, and that many who have come into the store this week have secured relief as soon as they were fitted with the proper appliance, and comfortable shoes.

Mr. Goldberg is very enthusiastic over his work, and says it is his ambition to send every person out of his store with feet made new.

"It is most gratifying," he said today, "to be identified with this great campaign to let people know that corns, callouses, fallen arches, flat feet, weak ankles, tender heels, etc., are things that they need no longer endure."

He also made this important assertion. When fitting a customer with Dr. Scholl Appliances it is not necessary to wear larger shoes nor make any change in style.

SECOND SESSION OF THE SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

The second session of the annual School of Missions will be held at the Presbyterian church this evening. Dinner will be served at 6:30 and the classes of the school of missions will be called to order by H. L. Finlay, the director of the school at 7 o'clock.

An intensive study of India is being carried on by a most competent corps of leaders—Mrs. George H. Foster has charge of the children's class, Mr. D. L. Foster is leading the young people's group, Mrs. Wm. B. Allison, who has been a missionary in Guatamala for a long period, is the instructor of the intermediate class, and the work has proved to be very interesting to the entire class. Mrs. J. Franklin Kelly, who has been a mission worker in both India and China will lead the combined group of men and women.

The school of missions will be followed at 8 o'clock by the midweek prayer service, led by Mr. Tinning. At this service Miss Marie Brehm of Long Beach will give an address. The school of missions is open to all who desire to attend.

PROTECT THE DEER

The deer season is closed, and yet there are a few gunning enthusiasts out in the wilds willing to take a chance with the law. Some of them do not hesitate to kill doe. In each instance, when caught, such hunters are fined, but not so heavily as they deserve. The slaughter of deer is a wholly unjustifiable process in California now. In pioneer days there was excuse, for the meat was needed as food. The killing that marks each autumn in these modern days bears no relation to the food problem. The pleasure of the chase is sole incentive. In this pleasure the deer fails to participate.

There seems to be an inhuman human tendency to exterminate wild life. Even the most beautiful birds are not spared. They are not shot because in any way harmful. As for the buffalo, while its butchery was wantom and wasteful, the territory over which it roamed was required for the sustenance of more useful products. There is in progress an effort to cause the seal to disappear. As for all forms of deer life, they seem to be fated. The antelope, as late as in the eighties, moved in great herds over the plains, where for years now not one has been seen. Travelers used to shoot them from the windows of cars, just for the excitement of seeing them fall.

But coming back to the remaining specimens of the deer in California, it may be said that in the absence of a law to safeguard them, they will vanish soon. Such a law would have to be in full force for a number of years. At the end of such period, if the gunmen had not outgrown the impulses that annually stir them so deeply, at least they could go forth with a fair prospect of game, and not feel any inducement to shoot doe.

DEFACING NATURE

For many years San Francisco had to fight the commercial interests that sought to destroy Telegraph Hill. This eminence is not only one of the principal elements among those making picturesque the approach to the city by water. It is a vital protection against the air currents that sweep in through the Golden Gate. The hill yields an acceptable quality of rock for crushing. Contractors wanted the material, and they proceeded to get it, fighting protests and injunctions year after year. As the hill crumbled, building lots were encroached upon and then destroyed. Where there had been a comparatively gentle slope appeared a cliff abrupt as a wall, dangerous, and hideous to see.

The Arroyo Seco, so familiar to all who know the community about Los Angeles, also has been the target of the destructive commercial spirit in a similarly ruthless fashion. Naturally a place of great attraction, a distinct addition to the landscape so disposed that with artistic treatment it could be made a scenic delight, it was mutilated and torn by rock crushers. Had this not been checked, the arroyo must have become an elongated blot on the face of the region to which it should have been an ornament. Pasadena has utilized its share of the arroyo, improvements there adding much to comeliness, and incidentally to values, making home sites possible and giving space for public improvement. Somewhat tardily Los Angeles has in turn awakened to the importance of the matter, and the rock crushers have been bidden to go. All lovers of natural beauty will be glad to know that a most unwelcome nuisance has been abated.

THE RUSSIAN DEBTS

"Those men in Washington," says a bolshevist editor, "ought to know by this time that they can't collect from Lenine and Trotzky the millions that American bankers stupidly lent to the czar."

Doubtless they do know the part of this that is true. That the loans were based on stupidity is not true. They were made upon a basis apparently as sound as similar loans to other foreign powers. The future, as it has developed, had not been, and could not have been foreseen. That such conditions as at present grind the hordes of Russia into misery were to eventuate, was beyond the conception even of the most pessimistic prophet of evil.

The fact that the world in general is but slightly concerned as to the ability of the bankers as collectors in this particular instance, should be taken into reckoning. Civilization is not standing aghast at the spectacle of the soviets refusing to accept the obligations of the former regime. What appalls civilization is the spectacle of a heartless oligarchy, disgracing the name of liberty that it professes to respect, and keeping the Russia, to which it proclaims devotion, crushed into hopeless wretchedness. The world outside of the soviet domain is far more concerned that peasants are robbed and babies starved, while production is stifled, than at the state of mind of any set of bankers. The possibility of collecting Russian debts is so remote as to be negligible. The best that may be expected is some method of ridding Russia of its bolshevist incubus, and thus giving its native industry a chance now utterly withheld.

MOVE FOR RECEIVERSHIP

The proposition evolved in France by the effort to promote the payment of reparations by Germany, is simply that the debtor be placed in the hands of receivers. The idea is that its industrial processes should be encouraged, but that at least a portion of its earnings be devoted to paying the bill growing out of the world war. Germany has made no visible effort to meet the payments. It has proclaimed again and again, its complete helplessness. Its currency has fallen to a plane close to the point of no value.

Very evidently the French do not accept the German view of conditions. They observe a certain industrial activity on the hither side of the Rhine. They see German goods entering the markets of the world. They hear rumors of the making of munitions for nations hostile to the allies. They are aware that individual German financiers are getting a stranglehold on many lines of commercial activity. Doubtless it is difficult for them to understand how Germany can manufacture and sell, becoming a trade rival demanding serious consideration, and yet be sincere in the protest that all this endeavor, and all this seeming accomplishment, is barren of result.

The fact has been demonstrated that Germany, unless forced to do so, will not pay any part of reparation. If to pay, really is beyond the ability of the German people, they will have difficulty in causing their version to be accepted. Even if a receivership such as suggested, did not bring about payment, at least it would clarify the situation, by demonstrating the payment to be impossible. Of course, whatever the temper of Germany in relation to living up to the terms of the treaty, the experience of being subordinated to another power, or combination of powers, would be disagreeable. But when Germany went to war, it must have been with the knowledge that such a move was the taking of grave chances.

Knowledge and Pleasure

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Knowledge is Power. And for that reason Knowledge is Pleasure.

For Pleasure consists in the forthputting of one's faculties.

Dr. Frank Crane

Living beings are so constituted that the normal functioning of their organism is attended by pleasurable sensation. This probably is Nature's bribe for health.

Beasts are happy because they obediently follow their instincts. It only in man that we find that preversion which produces disorder, disease and disgust.

"To do anything," says an English essayist, "to dig a hole in the ground, to plant a cabbage, to hit a mark, to move a shuttle, to work a pattern; in a word, to attempt to produce any effect and to succeed has something in it that gratifies the love of power and carries off the restless activity of the mind of man. Indolence is a delightful but a distressing state. We must be doing something to be happy."

All this needs no argument as far as the body is concerned. But the mass of men do not believe it as regards the mind.

It is only a comparatively few, the naturally elect, who love to learn.

Learning implies thinking, and thinking, to the average person, is rather a distress.

The vast institutions of Church, of State, and even of Education, owe their dominance and authority to the indisposition of men to think and to their willingness to allow some one to think for them.

It is this fact that is the buttress of all ancient errors.

It is this fact that keeps alive many a venerable institution from which the soul of reason long ago has flown.

With the democratization of literature, however, through the newspaper and the magazine, which the Brahmins of culture and the snobs of letters affect to deplore, the lust for learning is becoming more and more common in the modern world.

Minds are waking up to discover that in the normal exercise of their faculties there is quite as much fun to be had as there is for the body in running and jumping.

Almost all the higher forms of pleasure, naturally, require the co-operation of the intellect. Most of them are purely intellectual, or spiritual, if you prefer the word.

And there is no abiding mind-pleasure that is not based upon knowledge. The uneducated man is little more than a thinking beast. And the vast realms of the highest pleasures are closed to him.

You cannot enjoy pictures unless you know something about art. You cannot enjoy the opera or a symphony unless you have made some preparatory studies in music. You cannot enjoy travel unless it has been preceded by considerable reading. You cannot enjoy the best literature without a certain amount of training.

You cannot even enjoy religion in any worthy and self-respecting sense without some sort of background of study of the history of human thought and institutions.

The ignorant, the untrained, and the narrow-minded are often happy, and sometimes we envy them. But their happiness is of the quality which a well-fed cow or a comfortable cat enjoys, and we would not go back to it if we could.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE MODERN WRITER'S INFLUENCE ON AMERICAN YOUTH

H. B. Work, Superintendent of Schools at Lancaster, Penn., gives his opinion.

"Use proper English—create the desire to use our language correctly," was Mr. Work's message to the public, to magazines and authors particularly.

The interview took place recently in the superintendent's home on a Saturday afternoon, so the hour and place were well adapted for a pleasant discussion and a frank expression of opinion.

"Colloquial, slangy, and trashy magazine articles, and the same types of modern novels, are not only lowering the ideals of our youth, but are also corrupting our language," said Mr. Work. "It's the breezy type of story or novel that I condemn, the kind that murders the English language and emanates no good moral influence.

"The result is the growing difficulty to get boys and girls to reach such worth-while authors as Dickens, Emerson, Thackeray, George Eliot and Scott.

"It is no wonder that bad English sounds more familiar and correct at times than good English, and that hot disputes frequently occur over unquestionably bad grammar, especially when the public are confronted daily, weekly, and monthly with a deluge of slangy expressions.

"If this were true only in the case of certain cheap magazines or books that could be segregated the situation might be controlled, but the unfortunate aspect is that many of the higher class magazines and authors are guilty, which makes the evil all the more difficult to handle."

Mr. Work's foregoing opinion was given in a decidedly earnest manner. He maintained that the "work of the school is largely undone" by destructive outside influences.

In closing, I was anxious to get Mr. Work's opinion of a split infinitive. His answer to my query on this mooted problem was that he believed in splitting an infinitive when in so doing the result would be a phrase decidedly expressive and euphonious.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Wanting things.
That is much of life.
It begins with babyhood.
The baby wants milk or a rattle or a rubber doll or something or other.
And it cries aloud its wants.

* * *

Maybe it wants relief from colic or too tight clothing or sticking pins.
But it is a case of the beginning of wants.
And wanting continues through life.
We find it in the boy and the girl.
Wanting new shoes or skates or sleds or tops or hair ribbons or new frocks.

* * *

Wanting relief from chores and a chance to play.
Wanting bats and balls and uniforms and books and amusement.
The same old spirit of wanting.
Growing perhaps a bit more aggressive.
For wants multiply with health and high spirit.

* * *

And then there is the older boy or girl.
Youths wanting education.
Ambitious for position and emolument.
Wanting a place in life.
And then the wants of higher youth.
Love and a home and family.
The things that mark the beginning of a life in the world of affairs.

* * *

And so the scheme of wants increases and grows.
Wanted—a house and a motor car and a place of society and a job that pays a little more and travel and all that.
The amplifying scheme of wants.
Opportunity for expression and a bit of distinction above the common herd.

* * *

So it grows and continues.
The parents wanting children who will grow and learn and take a place in the world.
A bit more of money perhaps.
A gradual rise in the world of business and affairs.

* * *

And then doctors wanting patients.
Lawyers wanting cases.
Preachers wanting pulpits.
Contractors wanting jobs.
Merchants wanting customers.
And so the spirit of men is stimulated by an increasing succession of wants.

* * *

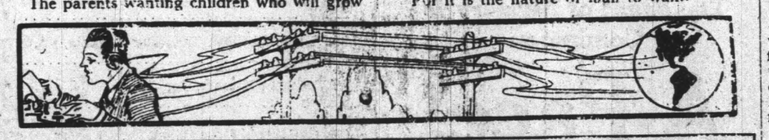
And then there is the scholar wanting knowledge.
The author wanting readers.
The scientist wanting truth.
The explorer wanting discovery.
The adventurer wanting romance.
The sorrowful wanting happiness.
The sick wanting health.

* * *

And later it is the mellow being of middle years wanting friends.
A book and a chair with a good light.
Contemplation and reflection.
For it is the spirit of youth to adventure and of years to reflect.
That is why we need youth and enthusiasm for building.
And years and reflection for ornamentation and balance.

* * *

And then comes along age.
Wanting peace and quiet and freedom from gouty twinges.
A comfortable bed to sleep on and sunny days to walk about in.
And when the human being ceases to want, there is senility.
Decay.
Death.
For it is the nature of man to want.



Songs of the Poets

O Captain! My Captain!—By Walt Whitman (1819-1892)

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
The ship has weathered every rack, the prize we sought is won,
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting,
While follow eyes, the steady keel, the vessel grim and daring;
But O heart! heart! heart!
O the bleeding drops of red!
Where on the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells;
Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle trills,
For you bouquets and ribbon'd wreaths—for you the shores crowding,
For you they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning;
Here, Captain! dear father!
This arm beneath your head!
It is some dream that on the deck
You've fallen cold and dead.

My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still,
My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will;
The ship is anchor'd safe and sound, its voyage closed and done,
From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won;
Exult O shores! and ring, O bells!
But I, with mournful tread,
Walk the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

IN DEFENSE OF FIREPLACES

By Dr. EDWIN E SLOSSON

One of the considerable differences between British and American customs is in the matter of house-heating.

The deviation was started out by that patriotic scientist, old Ben Franklin, famous as the inventor of the Franklin stove. From this beginning America has developed most elaborate and perfect heating systems by which a thousand rooms can be kept at an even temperature all the year round.

On the other hand the British have stuck to their open fireplaces, cumbrous, dirty, wasteful, and, as it seems to us, uncomfortable. Americans, returning from a foreign tour, rejoice in the comfortable atmosphere of their apartments and declare, "This is the first time I have felt warm since I left home." The British fireplace roasts one side of the body while leaving the other side to freeze. One must revolve before it as on a perpendicular spit to give all sides an even chance and even then the air is chilly and damp to breathe. It makes one shiver the more to see all that hot air escaping up the big chimney, when it is so much needed to warm the room.

We Americans have been disposed to attribute the retention of the inadequate and inconvenient fireplace to British backwardness and indifference to comfort. But now it seems that the British have some scientific justification for their preference besides personal prejudice and native conservatism.

In the first place the fireplace is not so wasteful as it seems to be. An investigation made in Manchester of all sorts of coal-fired grates showed the best gave out 24 per cent and the worst 20 per cent of the heat of the fuel consumed. A gas fire-place is twice as good, for its efficiency of radiation is 50 per cent of the net heat value of the gas consumed. Besides this advantage gas is a more economical way of using coal since in gas-making the ammonia and tar are saved and coke is obtained. An electrical heater is best of all since it sends out 75 per cent of the energy of the current in radiant heat and light.

Another point in favor of the fireplace is that radiant heat has been found to have certain physiological advantage over warm air from a steam-heating apparatus. Heat can be conveyed in two ways:

First, it can be carried by a current of hot air. This is called "convection."

Second, it may go by itself as ether waves. This is called "radiation."

In the case of radiation no air or any other medium is necessary. The sun's rays come to us through 93,000,000 miles of empty space without heating it or lighting it in the least. So, too, any glowing body, such as a bed of hot coal or a gas log or an incandescent electric wire, gives off radiations that travel straight across the room without heating the air much although they heat up any solid body they may strike.

But what we call a steam "radiator" would be more properly described as a steam-coil air-heater for most of the heat we get from it comes to us in currents of warmed air.

Now the Englishman, rightly or wrongly, does not want warm air. He wants cool air and a hot grate. He does not want an even temperature and a still atmosphere. He wants an uneven temperature and drafts. Professor W. A. Bone, chairman of the Fuel Economy Committee, stated the British ideal clearly in his report to the Association for the Advancement of Science meeting recently at Hull when he said:

"The more nearly the conditions under which our living rooms are warmed and ventilated approach those of a warm summer's day—a cooling breeze blowing around the head, the varying sunshine warming one side of the body and the warm ground for the feet—the more comfortable and healthful they will be. The desirability of such conditions, which may be contrasted with the warm air of rooms heated by convection from steam coils, probably explains the Englishman's decided preference for the radiation from an open fireplace during our dreary British winters over the various forms of central heating which are favored in America and other countries where the winters are colder but brighter.

Professor Bone is kind enough to allow us a loophole for our preference in a difference of climate. But it is evident that more is to be said on the side of radiation than we have considered.

Perhaps we have gone too far in our endeavor to secure a uniform temperature without drafts, even where we have provided thorough ventilation and proper humidity in our big buildings.

Professor Huntington of Yale says that the hardest work and highest thinking of the world is done where the temperature is variable and winds are frequent. His argument seems to point to the conclusion that the more uncomfortable the climate the better off are the people. Perhaps the same applies to houses.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There is such a thing as "unwritten law." It does not apply in the case of the mob. It does not apply, either, in any instance in which punishment could be inflicted by the courts. It is not a safe guide. The only excuse for resort to it must be that a wrong has been so deliberate and so heinous, that the perpetrator could not be reached by statutory method. Resort to it is not to be commended in any circumstance. It is likely to lead to misery. Yet when resort has been made to it, the incentive may have been so strong that common sentiment will condone the act of vengeance. This could be only when the guilt of the person subjected to the illegal prcoess had been flagrant, the revelation of it sudden, and when concerning all the facts, there could be no shadow of doubt.

HENRY JAMES

But admitting that there is unwritten law, it is not well in its operation for the individual who applies it. He is himself violating the statutes. He is likely to be acting under the impulse of an anger little short of madness, and it is quite possible that in a cooler moment, he will regret the course with bitterness. Moreover, he is setting a bad example. There will be others, suffering under injury, who may be impelled to take justice, or what seems to them justice, into their own hands, and find later that they have erred; that the matter could have been settled much better in open court.

A grave menace of unwritten law lies in the danger that it will be used as a shield by the cold-blooded murderer. This must involve the slander of the dead, in itself a repellent crime. Resort to it shows a nature debased to the lowest point. Yet with weak-minded jurors a plea for confinement might be effective.

Viewed from every angle, the existence of the unwritten law has to be recognized as a fact. It is a fact deeply to be deplored. It confuses the estimate of moral values, and it puts a weapon into the hands of the degraded by which they may cover their own foulness.

The exhibition of a film picture has been stopped in Paris. The claim is set up by a dancer that the picture is a portrayal of her own career. If it is, the unbiased judgment would be that the less she said about it the better. However, the court action will win publicity both for the dancer and the picture, which is a business necessity for each.

Another singular tragedy comes out of the hills. Two hunters, experienced in the handling of guns, friends of long standing, reputable citizens, were found dead. On the body of one was the mark of a bullet. At this writing nothing has been revealed as to the cause of the other death. Evidently there had been no robbery, and no struggle. The theory is that one of the hunters had shot the other by accident, and that in grief and remorse he had then committed suicide. Yet surely a man so conducting himself would have left some record to prevent mystery.

A Chicago lad of nine years was found dead under the bed where he had hidden in an agony of fear. Illness had detained him from school. His playmates had told him that the truant officer would catch him and put him into a black, black dungeon. In other words, the fool youngsters scared the little fellow to death. Perhaps they were not to blame. Grown-ups, when they threaten naughty children with bears or policemen, are doing the same trick.

This department owes Rhode Island an apology, tendered hereby. In mentioning a certain notorious tragedy, concerning which endless columns of slop have been written, it placed the principals in that state, whereas they belonged in New Jersey. No malice involved. The error was merely lapsus linguae reduced to print.

Americanization of aliens is a problem being given deep consideration in California. Truly an excellent plan, which should be made broad enough to take in a lot of native born illiterates of which the commonwealth signally fails to be proud.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Don't tell me they never come back. I know better. I've seen 'em come. My firm conviction is that there isn't a man in the world who cannot come back—come part way back, anyhow—if he only tries. And in support of this theory permit me to introduce Old Bill Hoover.

"Old Bill has slipped," every one said a year ago. "He's on the tobog. He's a cup of cold tea."

And, sure as you're born, it looked that way. Old Bill was fifty, to begin with, and when you begin to hit around fifty it behooves you to take your turns carefully. He had a little money, but not too much. He had a little job, but not too much of a job. He had a little wife and a little flat and a little ambition. But he had not only slipped, he had stopped.

"I'm only keeping Old Bill on the rolls because we were kids together," said his boss. "I hate to roll him the iron ball."

Hoover's eyes were fishy and dull and his dewlaps sagged and his clothes were wrinkled and baggy and his vest at times exhibited faint traces of the morning egg. Yet today Hoover is slim, upright, youthful, full of pep and zip, well dressed—and fifty-one.

"Apples did it," said Old Bill in confidence. "And they're still doing it. I do not like the cussed things any more, but they saved me."

The trouble with Hoover was that he had reached that physical period in early middle life when the functions of elimination did not work automatically any more. His system clogged with poisons continually. He got rid of them by the use of various means, but they came right back. Right after breakfast in the morning, when he had a Dead Sea full of coffee sloshing around in him and was still somewhat fresh from the night's rest, he was fairly good. But after his heavy lunch hit bottom he was practically doped.

"Now I'm on one cup of coffee a day," said Old Bill. "The rest of my breakfast is a little cereal. My lunch is apples. Whenever I get hungry I eat more apples. At dinner I eat little meat and no bread and lots of green vegetables. And I've just had a raise in salary. It is the first raise I've had in five years."

I'm trying the apples myself. I've already lost my appetite for them, but I'm sticking. So there may be hope.

PRESS NEWTON AGAIN TAKES THE ETHER

After an Absence of Two Weeks, Station Is Now Broadcasting

The Press Newton station, radio KFAC, disturbed the ether yesterday afternoon after an absence of two weeks and a half. Needless to say, the telephone started ringing and the many fans showered in their compliments and expressed their delight of hearing radio KFAC once more.

The station was forced to shut down when the transmitting tubes burned out and although every effort was made, it was impossible to obtain new tubes.

One of the new stunts introduced with opening of the station was "The Once Over." "The once over" is a parody on non-fiction stories of actual happenings, written in attractive form, by H. I. Phillips. These stories can be heard only via KFAC as no other station is broadcasting them, in this form. Another of the stories will be read on tonight's program.

SATSUMA PLUM JAM

It is not always possible and satisfactory to make a good plum jam. Many people who try the long cooking process find that they are tough. A friend who is an excellent cook gave it to me. Although it has not been used in this department, it will be in the course of a few days.

Use enough water to dissolve sugar. Stir well and boil until it reaches 245 degrees or will make a hard ball when tried in cold water. Put in the fruit which has been cleaned and cut into small pieces and cook ten minutes. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses. Cover.

Reports of Her Death "Greatly Exaggerated"

Lady Catherine Hamilton

When a body was found floating in the waters off Briar Rock, Gloucester, Mass., two friends identified it as that of Lady Catherine Hamilton, an English woman, whose husband and son were killed in the World War and who had been visiting the home of Mrs. Betsy Edmands, at Rockport, a Gloucester suburb. She had left to be away one day, but had been missing two weeks. However, when she read of her death, Lady Catherine telephoned from Providence that the report was "greatly exaggerated," quoting Mark Twain's famous retort. The body has not been identified.

"Mabel is a great comfort. She eats everything I give her, and never gives me a moment's worry in the summer time. But in the winter—I can't drive that child outside. She shivers and sits by the fire, and conjures up all sorts of excuses to remain indoors when I want her to run out and play in the snow with the other children."

Mabel's mother, who was wringing out a few flannels for the baby, shook her head.

And Monnie's mother, who lived across the way, tripping past from market, paused, rested her basket on the gate and presently came in and sat down on the porch.

Monnie's mother was one of the women who ran her house and her family by clockwork. She had three children under ten years.

Had Household Schedules

It was common knowledge that she wrote out a schedule for her household and hung it on the wall by the kitchen sink. There was another one in the bathroom. And she wrote her day's menus on a slate and never worried about extra company. Because she had an "emergency cupboard," and not one of the neighbors had ever seen her worried, or surprised by company, or known her to borrow anything. Her children were the healthiest in the block.

"How do you manage about your children's meals in the hot weather?" said Mabel's mother. "We were just talking about that."

"I think warm weather affects children differently," said Monnie's mother.

"But I have a plan," she confided, and the other two women exchanged glances. She would have a plan. But they listened eagerly, while she outlined it.

"The twins and Rena begin their day with an uncooked cereal these warm mornings, though occasionally I vary it with a cereal jelly, or oatmeal. They have top milk on it. No sugar. They also have stewed fruit, and bread and butter and orange juice, or a glass of milk and a soft boiled or poached egg.

Interesting Stories About Foods

"I interest them in their food by telling them about a different article each day. Today I told them about sugar cane. Tomorrow we may talk about making butter. It depends upon what they eat. The stories interest them, and I have to do a little reading to keep up with my children anyway, so it might as well be about practical things, that help them at school."

"Do they eat between meals?" asked Mabel's mother.

"If they are hungry, yes. But if they are really hungry a cup of milk and some crackers suffice. If they refuse this I know they are not actually hungry. Graham crackers are particularly good for them with milk, I find.

"In the middle of the day they have a little fish or chicken, or broiled meat, with plenty of green vegetables and fresh fruit, and whole wheat bread. We have few desserts at our house in the hot weather.

"Unnecessary sweets and rich foods are taboo. My children's evening meal is cereal or milk toast, or bread and milk, soup, custard, and a glass of milk at bed time. The simple life, you see."

"OLD AT SEVENTY-THREE? GUESS NOT!"

"I'm not old at 73," declares Mrs. Peter Connell of Syracuse, N. Y., who donned overalls to help shingle the roof of her home when a carpenter engaged to do the work became ill. She didn't get dizzy three stories in the air, for she has made many flights with her two sons, who were in the aviation section of the army in the world war.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH

Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

The condition of a real estate title is subject to momentary changes. Liens may attach to property at any time during the business day. In fact, even in the short time between the examination of a title and the recording of the instruments, the entire character of the title may change. Therefore, the search of the official records of county and city governments which contain liens affecting titles to real estate should cover the period from the time of the last examination of title up to and including the time of recording the documents completing the transfer.

These facts justify the statement that the utilization of an escrow department for closing a real estate deal is the only safe medium.

The Escrow Departments of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank are handling hundreds of separate transactions or escrows involving property valued into many millions of dollars. The majority of these escrows pertain to the sale, exchange or mortgage of real property. However, escrow departments handle many other transactions involving the sale of personal property, such as:

The sale, mortgage and exchange of apartment and hotel leases, including fixtures and furnishings. The sale, mortgage or exchange of the stock, trade and fixtures of merchants, such as grocery stores, confectionery stands, pool halls, butcher shops, transfer businesses, restaurants, garages, dry goods stores, motion picture theaters, and so on, in which latter transactions the Escrow Department protects the buyer to the extent of the current bills then due and owing by the vendor; the sale of corporation stocks, bonds and notes.

The Escrow Department of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank handles real estate transactions involving property located not only in California and various other States, but also some dealing with land in foreign countries.

The services of the Escrow Department appeal strongly to those who are familiar with them. The annoyances of paying taxes and assessments, liens, judgments, mortgages, etc., securing proper receipts, acquittance and releases therefor, the apportionment of rents, interest or taxes between buyer and seller, the payment of fire insurance premiums, and real estate or loan agent's brokerage or commissions are handled by the agent of all parties to the transaction—the Escrow Department—which guarantees the proper payment and receipt for each sum paid. A very reasonable charge is made for the service, considering the responsibility involved.

Real estate agents find that the deposit of "earnest money" with this department increases the chances of completing a sale and properly care for the payment of the agreed commissions.

All that is required to initiate and put through an escrow is the deposit of the money and necessary instruments with the Escrow Department of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, or its branches, with instructions from the seller or the borrower to record such instruments upon payment to him of the amount agreed upon, and with instructions for the buyer or lender to make such payment when the Escrow Department can procure a guarantee of the title as applied for. Upon proper instructions, the Escrow Department will secure releases of existing liens, such as mortgages, taxes, etc.

Consultation with the writer or Mr. Nelson of the Glendale Avenue Branch regarding the Escrow Services of the Brand Blvd. or Glendale Ave. Branches of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank is invited.

Gold Star Founder Flies Over U. S.

Miss Lillian Gatlin

Miss Lillian Gatlin, founder of the National Association of Aviation Gold Star Mothers, has arrived in New York, having flown entirely across the United States from San Francisco in U. S. Mail airplanes, the actual flying time being twenty-seven hours and eleven minutes. She will fly to Washington to launch her plan for a memorial day for aviators.

La Crescenta Personals

LA CRESCENTA, Oct. 24.—A brush fire on Rosemont avenue, above Michigan avenue, might have caused much damage but for the efficient work of the fire department which responded promptly to the call.

Do not forget there is to be a dance and entertainment at Glendale city park on Saturday night, October 28, to raise $350 to finish paying for the fire truck. Everyone in La Crescenta valley should be interested and do their best to make this entertainment a success. Everybody invited.

Dr. Telfer's father and mother spent a week in La Crescenta on their way from Detroit to their home in San Jose.

GLACE OF APRICOT
(Courtesy of American Cookery)
Peel and stone two pounds of apricots, saving the stems and a little bit at the blossom end. Put the fruit into a covered baking dish, and cook until soft and pulpy. Meantime boil two pounds of sugar with two cups of water to the soft-ball stage, or 235 deg. Fah. Add the cooked apricots, which should be so soft as to mix with the syrup to a smooth paste. Continue to cook, constantly stirring, until the mixture is very thick, stiff, and smooth. Pour into a dish, and as soon as cool enough form into balls the shape of apricots; insert the stems and blossom ends, and lay on waxed paper in a cool place until dry. They should be transparent, or nearly so.

'PRISONER OF ZENDA AT THE GLENDALE

Once in a great while there comes a motion picture which can be hailed as almost perfect. Such a picture is the Rex Ingram production for Metro of the famous story, "The Prisoner of Zenda," which had its showing at the Glendale theatre yesterday. This photoplay, which is based on Anthony Hope's novel, has been skillfully adapted by Mary O'Hara, gorgeously mounted by the Metro company and the excellent cast—which in earlier days would have been labeled "all star"—shows the inspired direction of that young wizard of the screen, Rex Ingram.

No one who has thrilled to the call of romance should fail to see this extraordinary picture which is packed full of action. Intrigue and devilish plotting is matched against heroic endeavor and ultimate victory for the loyal adherents of the ruler of the little kingdom of Ruritania. The settings are magnificent. The coronation, the processions, the royal ball are massive, beautiful and impressive. Here is sword play, intrigue, danger, plots, beauty, action and charm.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

That the cities that know what they are doing and where they are going generally get somewhere.

That many cities need team thinking and team working.

That it is time that some cities removed their "smoke screens" and let the world know where they are and where they stand.

That a man should not pretend to be one thing and be another.

That quality merchandise is sold in the stores of your city, and advertised in your papers. Read the ads.

That your city is the natural shopping center for your section. It has all the public conveniences of a live city.

That a clean city is always a healthy city. Keep your city clean.

That your city should set the pace for all cities in your section. Be first in everything.

That every citizen should wear the smile of optimism, show commercial courage and faith, and keep everlastingly boosting your city.

That if you do all this, you will have personal success, civic success and a city that will grow and develop.

EXCITING MOMENTS IN YALE-IOWA AND ARMY-ALABAMA GAMES

At the top, Leland Parkin, Iowa's quarterback is shown trying for a field goal in the Yale bowl. He failed in this attempt but it was Parkin who later made the touchdown that beat Yale, 6 to 0. The lower photograph shows the West Point team being held just short of the Alabama goal. The next play resulted in a touchdown, the Army's first of the game. This evened the score at 6-6, and then the Cadets went on to win, 19 to 6.

APPLE PIE DE LUXE

Bake eight large tart apples, pass them through a sieve into a large bowl, chill, then add three-fourths cup of sugar and the whites of five eggs, beaten dry, bit of salt. Beat the mixture until very white and lights and bake in a buttered pudding dish about twenty minutes. Serve hot with cream and sugar. Cooked prunes, apricots, peaches or berries, passed through a sieve, may be substituted for the apples.

TUESDAY CLUB INCREASES ITS DUES

Fine Musical Program Marks Regular Meeting

A fine musical program was enjoyed by members of the Tuesday Afternoon club at the regular meeting this week over which the president, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, presided. The names of 14 new members were read by the acting secretary, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, and two amendments to the constittuion proposed by Mrs. John Robert White at the last meeting, were adopted. One was an amendment by which the annual dues were raised from $6 to $10, payable in two installments, $5 at the beginning of the year and $5 the first of February. Mesdames E. W. W. Hayward, Alexander Mitchell, Charles Hutchinson, W. L. Andrews and W. E. Evans spoke in favor of the change which carried unanimously. The other amendment covered a slight change in article 8, section 5, of the by-laws, which would enable any member in good standing to apply for life membership. This also carried.

The president reported the resignation from the board of directors of Mrs. O. E. Von Oven, because of illness, and the appointment of Mrs. H. E. Bartlett to fill her place, which announcement was greeted with applause.

Members were asked to give pieces which could be utilized in the dressing of dolls to Mrs. George Tennant.

Mrs. Freeman Kelley, chairman of programs, stated that there had been a change in plans and the program for charter day, November 14, would be provided by the Music section and would be entitled "In An Old-Fashioned Garden." She also said that following the program members would adjourn to the new club house for the laying of the corner stone and would there be addressed by several distinguished speakers, including Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, past president of the National Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Holbrook, chairman of the legislative section, urged members to join and familiarize themselves with the measures on the November ballot, and also announced an open forum meeting to which the general public were invited Tuesday, October 31, at which time Mrs. Wheeler, state president of the W. C. T. U. would talk on the Wright bill, and other speakers would discuss the water and power act, the measure concerning increase in names in initiative petitions, and the veterans' loan act.

Mrs. C. W. Houston presented the project to secure funds to provide chairs for the new auditorium by subscriptions of $5 a chair, the chairs to bear a metal plate on which the donor's name would be engraved. This, as she explained, will be the most urgently needed furnishing and one which can hardly be dispensed with because the auditorium has a sloping floor.

Section meetings were announced by Mrs. W. E. Evans, general curator, and then the artists of the afternoon were introduced — Doris June Struble, whose specialty is pianologues, in a joint recital with Morris Stoloff, violinist, with R. Fulton Barr at the piano.

Mr. Stoloff is a conscientious musician of excellent technique, who greatly pleased with the following program, adding a charming encore number which was not announced:

Capriccio Valse	Wienawski
Serenata	Moskowski
Valse Bluette	Drigo-Auer
Romanza Andulaza	Sarasate
Nocturne E Minor	Chopin-Auer
Ous der Heimat	Smetana

Miss Struble, who has cleverness and energy written all over her, from her active little feet to her crown of auburn hair departed somewhat from the program arrangement and opened with "The Hopak" (Moussorgsky), a quite dramatic interpretation, in French, of the unhappiness of a pleasure-loving young Russian girl who had been forced into a marriage with an old man and was cut off from her young companions. This was followed by "With You Away" (Dorothy Paul), with La Golandrina as the piano accompaniment. Other numbers were:

"The Interrupted Prayer" (Foley); "The Road to Vagabondia" (Dona Burnet) with "Humoresque" for the musical setting; two Bayou ballads, taken from the negro song collection of Mina Moore—"Marianne's Love" and "Look at Dat Mulatto." She closed her portion of the program with "The Compliments of the Season" (by special request), sometimes called "The Sneeze."

From 1:30 to 2:30 there was community singing led by Hugo Kirchofer, which appeared to be greatly enjoyed by an audience which filled about three-fourths of the auditorium. Before the special program provided for the afternoon was begun, every seat was taken.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The civil service commission invites special attention to the fact that in examinations held recently in Los Angeles and other cities throughout the United States for computer, coast and geodetic survey, and assistant observer in meteorology, weather bureau, applicants were not secured in the number desired, and that these examinations will be held again on December 6.

List of examinations to be held soon: Assistant nematologist, junior laboratory aid, junior bacteriologist (food products); junior engineer and deck officer, X-ray mechanician; auditor, income tax unit; junior bacteriologist (veterinary); plant pathologist, inspector of construction, livestock market reporter, meatmarket reporter, music teacher (Indian service).

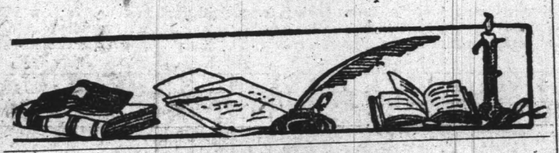
JAMES W. FOLEY

FAREWELL TO THE RUSTIC LASS

Our dream is done. Tomorrow I must go
Back home because my school begins, you know,
And all I'll bear away from this dear place
Is freckles and the thoughts of your sweet face
To be my inspiration when I start
To school again. But Oh, my aching heart
Will pine for you here on your father's farm
With cows and pigs and everything to charm
Dull care away and make the world seem fair
With gorgeous roses blooming everywhere.

The world will never seem the same to me,
And when I'm busy with my geography
Your face will come before me wreathed in flowers
Like we have gathered many happy hours.
And I'll forget about my books and then
As like as not I will get whipped again
Because I do not bound the state of Maine,
When teacher asks me to. But Oh, the pain
Of it will pass but your sweet face will stay
In memory forever and a day.

Perhaps I will come back another year
When school is out again and find you here
Still true to me as you are now, although
The hired boy would like to have you go
To husking bees and things with him, but you
Will look at him with scorn and you'll be true.
And Oh, the buckwheat cakes that we have et
At breakfast time I never will forget
While life shall last, and honey on them, too,
Will surely keep me true as steel to you.



INFANTILE ECZEMA

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

Of special interest to any mothers is a report by Dr. H. B. Mills of Philadelphia summarizing recent progress in the treatment of eczema in infants. Always a malady perplexing the physician, eczema has been peculiarly baffling when developing in the young, and it is good to learn that distinct headway has lately been made in coping with it.

In a surprisingly large proportion of cases, according to Dr. Mills, it would seem to be a product of so-called anaphylaxis, or intolerance for some food element, usually a protein element. This whether it occurs in breast-fed babies or in bottle-fed ones. In the latter case the trouble usually is in the milk as a whole, in the former it is due to some one or more ingredients of the milk.

That is to say, there is in the food eaten by the mother some element which, though wholesome enough to her, is more or less injurious to the breast-fed child. If this element is ascertained and eaten less freely by the mother, or if necessary not eaten at all by her, then the child's eczema may be expected to disappear.

Of course, since the offending element is not offensive to the mother, it cannot be ascertained by applying to her the now familiar skin tests for food poisoning. But it can be ascertained by applying these to her child, either on the forearms, as is customary in the case of adults, or on the back.

One investigator in this novel field of medical research and treatment, Dr. O'Keefe, has found that not fewer than 40 per cent of his cases of infantile eczema are completely cured by changes in the mother's diet following skin-test detective work, and that an additional 20 per cent are greatly benefited. Eggs seemingly lead as eczema producers, but almost all articles of food have been incriminated.

And in some instances not one but many food elements would cause positive reactions in the breast-fed child's skin testing. In these cases Mills notes:

"Some foods would be eliminated entirely and others limited in quantity. It is important for the mothers to eat a large variety of foods, but only a small quantity of each individual food."

As regards eczema in bottle-fed infants, boiling the milk has been found a helpful measure. Sometimes, though, milk has to be dropped entirely for a limited period, in which case Mills recommends feeding with simple sugar dilutions or cereal decoctions.

On the other hand, sugar intolerance may itself be a cause of infantile eczema. In other cases intolerance for fats is the inciting cause. Then a low fat diet is indicated, such as may be had by feeding with skimmed milk, buttermilk and melted butter.

Finally, Mills reports a puzzling observation with regard to infants whose eczema is a symptom of food poisoning:

"A peculiar and interesting point is that, after a baby has been weaned, it is frequently able to eat the foods that had been removed or limited in the mother's diet while it was on the breast and yet not bring back the eczema."

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE RADIO AND THE 12:17

Complete use of the radio in railroad trans is now in the offing. Tests proving that radio messages can be received inside speeding express trains without the use of outside aerials have been successful. Already many railroads are featuring radio programmes.

Hear America First!

In the past a man could get completely out of touch with the outside world by the mere process of getting aboard a train. From now on there will be little difference between travelling across country in a Pullman car and travelling across in a telephone receiver.

The American public will now do its travelling entirely by ear.

"Did you enjoy the beautiful trip through the Rockies?" you will ask the 'cross-country tourist. "It must have been exquisite."

"Yeah," he'll reply; "I never heard Al Jolson's voice so clear, and there was a jazz number by Salvini's Board Walk Band that was a whiz."

"And, oh! tell me about the Grand Canyon! Wasn't it magnificent?"

"Best part of the trip. The French horns and 'cellos were wonderful, and there was an Indiana Blues number by Nora Bayes that was the turtle's upholstery. I never heard the Bedtime Story sound so clear."

Of course the advent of radio train service means more work for the train caller. He'll have to memorize a new piece:

Golden Gate Express for "Thais," "Humoresque," Cleveland, "O Sole Mio," "Rigoletto," Chicago, "Sweet Adeline,' Denver, "Old Black Joe," Sousa's Band, crop reports, Ed Wynn monologue, "Carolina Blues,' Bison City Quartet, James Whitcomb Riley readings by Mrs. Arabella Smitherkins, and points west . . . leaves on Track No. 6 at 4:34, Arlington time . . . All-l-l-l-l abo-o-ar-rrrd!"

After which the travelling folks will jump from the station benches, clutch their tuning forks and crystal sets, and rush aboard.

Elderly Lady: Can you tell me whether this train plays, "Silver Threads Among the Gold?"

Train Caller: No, ma'am; take the W J Z local for that number.

Beautiful young lady: Can you show me what train to take to hear "Kiss Me Again," "Love's Sweet Song," and "I'm Crazy Over You?"

Train caller (very embarrassed): I certainly can. Step this way, please!

Indignant Commercial Traveller: My train is two hours late again. Whatzamatah?

Station Master: It ran out of violin solos at Pittsburgh.

Wild Business Man: Say, looka here! What's the trouble with the 2:15 express?

Station Master: Three hours time. It had to stop at Gopher Prairie for a new crystal set.

WRECK VERDICT

"Cause of collision between Express W X Z and Local K J H: Engineer Johnny Jones was listening to 'Uncle Wiggly-Wiggly's Bedtime Stories,' and did not see the train ahead. Flagman of train ahead should have gone back to protect train with red flares, but failed to do so. Find he was listening to the 'Sextette from Lucia,' and forgot all about being aboard a train. Recommend that president of two broadcasting stations be held criminally responsible for the wreck."

Travel Note: Mr. and Mrs. O. Howe Dumm, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. Lott Dummer and radio sets, left today on the 12:30 for an extended railroad trip.

OIL BEFORE THE SQUEAK IS HEARD

So Advises Bill Germany, Sales Manager of the I. G. Cooley Motors Co.

"During the summer and early fall months when the motor car is being used so extensively, owners cannot place too much emphasis on the necessity of careful and regular lubrication," says Bill Germany, salesmanager of I. G. Cooley Motors company, 312 S. Brand Blvd., local Durant dealer in four and six cylinder models. "At this time of the year, the car is seeing more service than in any other season, and the life of the car depends upon the special attention that it receives.

"The theory of lubrication is to prevent any two pieces of metal, that are working one against each other, from touching. This can be done by having a film of oil between these two metals. And on this film rests future satisfaction of the bearings, cylinders, pistons and rings.

"Oil should be drained from the motor crankcase, and replaced with fresh oil at stated intervals. While the motor is new, the oil should be drained and the crankcase flushed clean and new fresh oil put in at the end of every 500 miles for the first 1500 or 2000 miles. After that, it should be changed at the end of every 1000 miles.

"Remember that the additional money spent in regularly draining off all old oil and refilling with new is money saved through the long life of your motor.

"Never use anything but pure mineral oil in the motor. Touring over heavy and hilly roads uses up oil much faster than city driving. By putting in an extra pint of oil every hundred miles or so, you are avoiding trouble with bearings and cylinders.

"Do your oiling before you hear a 'squeak,' for that sound implies a rusted or dry bearing, and when once in that condition, trouble is sure to follow.

"The construction of some cars makes lubrication easy and effective, especially those cars which are equipped with a double oiling system known as force-feed and constant lever splash system which insures positive lubrication of all moving parts at all speeds."

ROLLED STUFFED FLANK WITH VEGETABLES

One pound flank or round steak two medium potatoes (diced), two medium carrots (diced), two medium onions (sliced), one medium turnip (diced), two medium parsnips (diced), one cup tomatoes, one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter or beef drippings, one tablespoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons pepper, two tablespoons flour.

Dredge steak with flour. Make a dressing of bread crumbs, melted fat, one teaspoon salt, and the pepper; spread dressing over steak, roll and tie. Sear in fat until well browned. Place vegetables and remainder of salt in baking dish, lay meat roll on top. Add enough water to nearly cover meat and vegetables. Cover and bake slowly one to two hours, adding more water if necessary. This may be cooked on top of the stove instead of being baked.
